Worthington Way

A legacy of hope

A legacy of hope and unwavering commitment to making a difference.

Named in honour of our founder Dr Ros Worthington OAM, Worthington Way is a society of generous people who have included a gift in their Will to Breast Cancer Care WA (BCCWA).

Ros was a visionary philanthropist and a powerhouse of compassion whose drive and determination to be a voice for the voiceless knew no bounds. Her own experience with chronic breast disease inspired her to establish BCCWA.

Recognising a gap in support, Ros set out to bridge it, raising pillars of practical assistance, advocacy and emotional understanding that help smooth the path for our clients and alleviate stress during what is often the most challenging time of their lives.

We are so grateful to those who follow her inspiring example by helping us to reduce the impact on those affected by breast cancer in WA.

Worthington Way

Everyone who promises a bequest to BCCWA is welcomed into Worthington Way; it is our way of showing our gratitude for their generous commitment to making a difference and creating a legacy of hope for WA families facing breast cancer.

As a treasured member of the BCCWA community, everyone in Worthington Way is kept closely engaged with the work we do, receiving invitations to special events and regular updates on our news and developments.

Thank you.

Give in your Will

Bequests are the most special and thoughtful gifts, and they all make an impact - no matter the size.

Breast Cancer Care WA provides specialist and personalised care to West Australians facing breast cancer, and all of our services are completely free of charge. A legacy gift to BCCWA is a gift of hope, and a promise of help for however long we may be needed.

How can I give in my Will?

Including a gift in your Will, also known as a bequest or legacy gift, is a deeply personal act, but it is also simple – it is a matter of deciding which of your values you want to see reflected in the world. Legacy gifts can take many forms: a specific sum of money or asset, a percentage of your estate, the remainder of your estate after providing for loved ones, or even your entire estate.

Here is some suggested wording to include a gift to BCCWA in your Will:

"I give [here state the amount/ percentage or share/residue or assets to be gifted] free of all duties and taxes, to BREAST CANCER CARE WA LTD (ACN 694 617 073) to be used for its general purposes, and I declare that an authorised receipt from BCCWA shall be sufficient discharge of this gift."

For guidance or a confidential discussion about giving in your Will, please contact our Philanthropy Executive on (08) 9324 3703 or gifts@breastcancercare.org.au.

Can you please help me write my Will?

We encourage you to seek independent professional advice when making or amending your Will, as we are unable to advise on legal and financial matters. We can, however, refer you to a solicitor specialising in Wills and estates, or you may wish to consider an online Will service.

I already have a Will - how can I add a gift?

You can change your Will by adding a codicil – a legal form that enables minor changes to an existing Will. Please seek advice from your solicitor regarding the addition of a codicil.

Do I need to let BCCWA know about the gift?

We would love to hear from you so we can thank you and welcome you to Worthington Way, but disclosing your gift is completely at your discretion.

Our promise to you

We are honoured that you are considering a gift in your Will to BCCWA. Deciding to leave a legacy gift is a personal and heartfelt decision, and we acknowledge that it takes time and consideration. We promise to treat all queries and discussions with utmost respect and confidentiality.

Worthington Way

Include a gift in your Will to Breast Cancer Care WA so we can continue to offer the free specialist support every West Australian facing breast cancer and their family needs.

Be part of a legacy of hope and unwavering commitment to making a difference.
